

Station 2: Africa

From 1880 to 1914, Europeans used imperialism to dominate the continent of Africa.

D European leaders met in 1884 to peacefully divide claims on African lands. Africans had no say in this agreement. By 1914 European colonies had been set up in nearly every part of Africa.

Before Europeans, Africa was divided into tribal clans

During Exploration, Europeans explored the African coast.

The arrival of Europeans changed Africa and brought African slaves to their colonies in America.

The Industrial Revolution led to imperialism in Africa in the mid-1800s.

The first Europeans to explore the interior of Africa were missionaries & explorers.

In the 1870s, the discoveries of a missionary named David Livingstone increased European interest in Africa.

Reports of large deposits of natural resources & the rise of nationalism in Europe set off a race for African colonies.

Social Darwinism, steamboats, & industrial weapons encouraged the conquest of Africa.

The race for African colonies was so fierce that Europeans became afraid wars would break out.

In 1884, 14 nations met at the Berlin Conference to “set the rules” for colonizing in Africa.

What kind of rules did they create?

Any nation could claim land in Africa by notifying other nations & showing it could control the area

Problem → No African nations were invited to attend;
No concern was given to ethnic divisions in Africa.

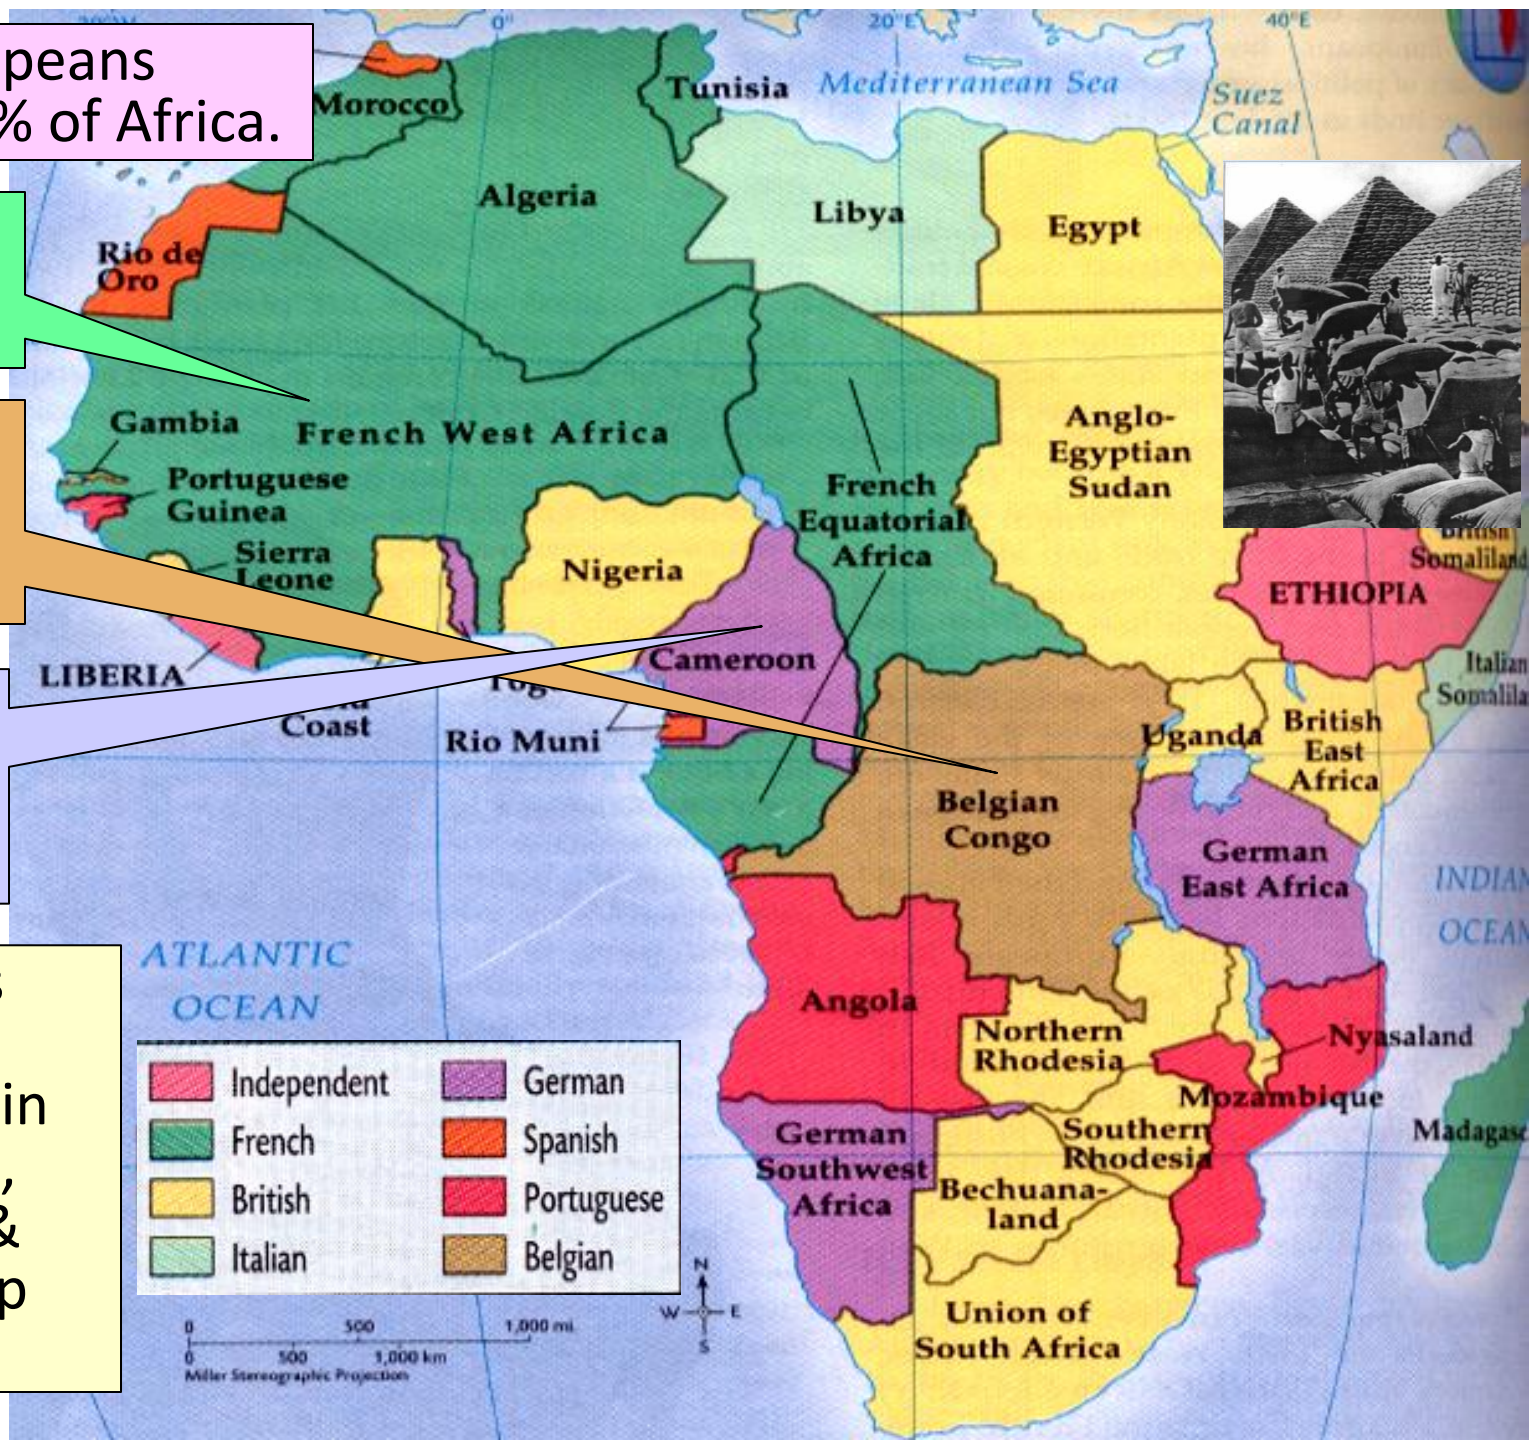

By 1914, Europeans controlled 90% of Africa.

France took most of west Africa.

Belgium claimed the Congo in central Africa.
(See video links on the last slide)

Germany had many colonies throughout Africa.

These nations used African colonies to gain diamonds, tin, gold, rubber & built cash-crop plantations.

The most dominant imperial power in Africa was Great Britain

How Big Was Britain's Empire in Africa?

British colonies in Africa

Many citizens in England dreamed of a British colony from "Capetown to Cairo"

British industry fueled demand for raw materials. Claimed colonies in Egypt & East Africa and took control of South Africa from the Dutch. In 1882, Britain seized control of the Suez Canal from a French company.

British businessman, Cecil Rhodes was considered to be an empire builder. He prepared the way for apartheid by working to alter laws on voting and land ownership.

"I contend that we are the first race in the world, and that the more of the world we inhabit the better it is for the human race," he once said.

"Why should we not form a secret society with but one object," said Rhodes, "the furtherance of the British Empire and the bringing of the whole world under British rule, for the recovery of the United States, for making the Anglo-Saxon race but one Empire?"

His DeBeers Company created diamond mines in South Africa .

Rhodes gained new colonies for Britain in southern Africa.

Rhodes used his wealth to build railroads & telegraph lines in Africa.

What was the impact of European imperialism in Africa?

Europeans introduced new technologies like railroads, telegraph lines, & steamboats...

...but transportation routes only connected areas that benefited European businessmen.

Europeans brought an end to the slave trade...

...but Africans were paid low wages & exploited.

What was the impact of European imperialism in Africa?

Europeans built schools, churches, & hospitals...

...but Africans were taught European culture

Europeans profited off Africa's raw materials & cheap African labor.

Africans were unable to rule themselves, participate in voting, or learn professional skills.

In South Africa, the British segregated society called apartheid remained in place for over 100 years.

Africans rebelled against European rule but were defeated due to advanced European weaponry.
